6 ceramic sculpture exhibitions not to miss

by Charles Desmarais

The increased interest in ceramic sculpture among artists has seen a corresponding expansion of offerings in Bay Area art galleries, from introductions of new artists to rediscoveries of historic figures. Here are six long-running museum exhibitions of special note, in chronological order.

"Woody De Othello": "I'm still an avid cartoon-watcher," the artist says. Don't be fooled. De Othello's woozy visions are equal parts fantasy and fear. 11 a.m.-5 p.m. Tuesdays-Sundays. Nov. 1-April 5. $8-$10; 17 and under free. San Jose Museum of Art, 110 S. Market St., San Jose. (408) 271-6840. www.sanjosemuseumofart.org
